to knock down a post.

The fire brigade display, entirely new this year, will provide many thrills. The competitors will have to dash at full speed around the course, dodging between obstructions, giving a margin of a scant inch and a half to each wheel.

In the women's competitions, special inducements have been offered for the entry of foreign teams, with the result that the ladies' entries almost equal the men's in number. Mrs. H. S. Bowen. New York's famous equestriene, is one of the foremost of these. She will show in the harness class the four brown ponies which won distinction at Olympia last season, and which she purchasyd after the show for $5.000 apiece from William Foster. The wives of the visiting army officers are to give an exhibition of fancy riding. A special cup has been presented by Lady tirenail for a riding competition for girls under sixteen, and 'women will be seen in every branch of horseman-failty, including driving carts, standems, ipairs and fours.

RACE HORSES NOT AFFECTED.

Customs Ceuri ttuling Does Not Apply to Automis for Exhibition.

Washington, D. C., June 16.—Racing of American bred horses in Canada or Europe will not be affected by the customs courts much discussed ruling, which imposes a duty on all domestic animals when they are returned to this country.

Horses which go to Canadian tracks or to France or England will be classed or animals for exhibition, and may be readmitted free of duty.

Many prominent horsemen have represented that if the court's rule were applied to race horses, it would present a sreat obstacle to horse breeding in this country.

Elaborate Decorations,
Elaborate decorative arrangements have been completed. The interior of the wast building has been transformed into a Tudor village. Everywhere fronts of half-timbered houses, toppling and quaint, with latticed windows, will meet the eye, while even the bandstand will be an Elizabethan cottese, beautifully decorated with twining rose vines and fry.

Refreshments will be served at a village inn. the Lownjer Arms, a compliment to the chairman of the show, the Earl of Lonsdale. This ancent relic of rural Britain will be graced with a swing sign, and, from the long caves, overhanging the timbered front, natural, roses will climb, while a horse plow nearby will add a touch of realism. At no time in Britain's past has much effort been put forth to make the yearly international horse show a success, long to be remembered in equestrian annuls.

Here are three of the things you ought to consider to insure service and satisfaction from the motor car you buy.

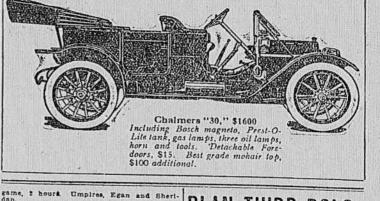

First, the car itself. Buy a good car. One that has absolutely proved itself good. (We handle such a car; it is the Chalmers.)

Second, the factory and organization Second, the factory and organization behind the car. (Again we say Chalmers. The Chalmers factory is big, new, thoroughly equipped. The Chalmers organization is strong, well balanced, energetic and ambitious—keen to "make good.")

Third, the dealer. You have all your transactions with him. (We are willing to have you ask the people in this community whom we have served as to our methods.
